Capital Markets Consulting and CQG Align to Deliver Exceptional Services to the Futures Industry

CHICAGO – October 13th, 2008, Capital Markets Consulting and CQG have joined forces to help create custom solutions for the capital markets. From the windy city of Chicago to a business hub like Singapore to the Futures Industry Association's Asia conference in Tokyo, CMC and CQG have continued to discuss how to maximize their services to shared clients.

“Capital Markets Consulting and CQG have a common goal, providing clients with the most efficient tools to get their trading strategies up and running,” said Mike Glista, Director of Trade Routing at CQG. “CMC's knowledge of our products, particularly the API, will allow mutual clients to benefit from faster time to market and seamless integration techniques.”

With Capital Markets Consulting's proprietary methodology, CQG and their clients receive customized solutions for their trading needs. Back in 2002, CMC designed, developed and implemented two gateways for CQG's exchange connectivity. Since then, the two firms have worked together on various projects; including trading system enhancements and product customization. One project included a custom trading system that performed specific functions on CQG's market data.

“The client was using CQG's API and we developed a trading system with reporting and charting capabilities. It was also able to produce historical and current time slices as well as up to date ticks,” said President and Chief Executive Officer of Capital Markets Consulting, John Barun. “Our familiarity with CQG's software allowed for a more efficient and customized solution.”

Capital Markets Consulting is committed to developing the most efficient solutions to the financial markets and forming alliances to enhance their market services. Our alignment with industry firms has allowed for more of an understanding of our client's technical needs and insight into their business strategies. By joining forces, we have made it easier for their strategies to come to life.
