With CQG Mobile, CQG Delivers Wireless Access to Real-Time Market Data

Denver, CO, December 14, 2009 – CQG, Inc., the industry-leading order execution, charting, and analytics provider for global electronically-traded futures markets, today announced access to real-time market data through the BlackBerry® wireless platform.

“Sophisticated traders across the world turn to CQG because they trust our data’s quality, accuracy, and reliability,” said Josef Schroeter, President of CQG. “CQG Mobile extends the reach of our unparalleled market data platform to traders whenever, and now wherever, they need it.”

CQG Mobile helps traders enhance their productivity by enabling them to view the markets on their BlackBerry mobile device when they are away from their usual trading environment. Data from more than 100 exchanges worldwide is available to CQG Mobile users, bringing real-time quotes on futures, stocks, fixed income, options, indices, foreign exchange, and cash to traders on the go.

Now in its thirtieth year, CQG continues to have the highest commitment to providing reliable and accurate data. As part of this commitment, primary and failover data centers worldwide ensure uninterrupted market data distribution, and a dedicated data quality group monitors the CQG global data network 24 hours a day to ensure customers get the cleanest data available. CQG was the first to utilize real-time data corrections and continues to use forward thinking technology to make its data the best available.
