CQG Presents Version 7.9 of its Professional Trading Platform, the CQG Integrated Client

Denver, CO, March 4, 2009 – CQG, Inc. today announced the release of CQG Integrated Client 7.9, the global market data, analytics, and electronic trading front-end for the professional trader. This enhanced version offers seamless integration between order routing and analytics, high-performance spread trading, and sophisticated decision-making tools.

Continuing their efforts to integrate technical analysis and trading, CQG now displays up to four condition values directly on the DOMTrader®, the platform's most popular trading interface. Traders can see where the inside market is relative to their favorite chart studies on the price ladder of the DOMTrader.

Spread trading for exchange-traded spreads is available directly from two new spread quote displays: Spread Matrix and Spread Pyramid. CQG's reliable charting, portfolio management, custom studies, and analytics can be combined with the spread trading interfaces. AlertTrading is more effective with the expansion of supported order types. The Study Following Orders feature allows traders to set orders that follow their custom studies.

Their state-of-the-art charting and analytics now include Yield and Forward Curves which plot both real-time and historical data in a chart that can be customized based on the trader's needs. CQG also enhanced its external data feature with a powerful suite of XData Studies that analyze proprietary data down to the millisecond.

CQG's ongoing innovation in data management and transmission technologies provides customers with industry-leading market data and delivery. This commitment in version 7.9 introduces Need to Know News economic release data that is available both as stories in CQG News and as quotes in one of their eight quote displays.

"With a strong drive to continually exceed our customers' expectations, we present a new version of our professional trading platform to the trading community. The CQG Integrated Client offers the best of class tools in one powerful application and with the latest improvements in version 7.9, we offer more choices, more flexibility, and more efficiency," said Rod Giffen, Global Head of Sales and Support at CQG.
